Fun Writing Prompts for Middle Schoolers— Middle school writing skills are essential to building a solid educational foundation in children. To help reinforce the habit of regular writing, it is essential to show kids that writing in school can be fun. Journaling is one way to do so. Every writing teacher is familiar with that complaint, so here's a list of writing prompts designed to give students something to write about. They all require some self-reflection, maybe a little soul-searching. I imagine these would be effective for journal writing, but there's lots of creative writing potential here. Sometimes, reflective writing will ask you to think more deeply about a book, movie, musical work, or piece of art. Other times, the topics will invite you to reflect on a personal encounter or other experience. These four reflective essay prompts for high school students are more personal in nature. Leave out thought and emotion, and let all information be conveyed through the body and senses." (A prompt from Barbara Abercrombie's creative book Kicking In The Wall: A Year of Writing ...
